1:30 – 4:00 PM ET	Action Group Session
--------------------------	-----------------------------

Community Participation in Implementation Science

The goal of this action group is to identify important work and related "public goods" in community participation in implementation science that will move the field forward. Major gaps to be addressed include insufficient or late engagement, finding a place on the continuum of engagement, and measures, competencies, engagement, and impact.

- Leaders:
- Shoba Ramanadhan, ScD, MPH, Assistant Professor, Social and Behavioral Sciences, Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health
 - Heather Brandt, PhD, MSPH, St. Director, HPV Cancer Prevention Program, Jude Children's Research Hospital

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 7TH

1:00 – 3:30 PM ET	Action Group Session

Context and Equity in Implementation Science

The focus of this action group is on how the implementation science community can advance and make more explicit the incorporation of health equity and context across cancer prevention/control research.

- Leaders:
- Prajakta Adsul, PhD, MPH, MBBS, Assistant Professor, University of New Mexico School of Medicine and Comprehensive Cancer Center
 - Rachel Shelton, ScD, MPH, Associate Professor, Sociomedical Sciences, Columbia Mailman School of Public Health
 - Stephanie Wheeler, PhD, MPH, Professor, Department of Health Policy and Management, UNC Gillings School of Global Public Health

Implementation of Complex/Multilevel Interventions

The goal of this action group is to (1) understand the interface of multilevel interventions and implementation science, (2) explore the interface of complex interventions and implementation science, and (3) to produce goods and tutorials to help others seeking to work at the interface of these disciplines.

- Leaders:
- María Fernández, PhD, Professor, Health Promotion and Behavioral Sciences, and Director, University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston
 - Melinda Davis, PhD, Associate Professor, Family Medicine, OHSU School of Medicine and OHSU-PSU School of Public Health
